Robinson+Cole Lawyer Joins Statewide Legal Services Board of Directors

Immigration lawyer Megan R. Naughton joins Connecticut's umbrella organization that offers legal services to the state's lowest-income citizens

HARTFORD, CT (April 16, 2015) – Robinson+Cole lawyer Megan R. Naughton has joined Connecticut's Statewide Legal Services (SLS) Board of Directors. SLS empowers low-income people in Connecticut to obtain justice by providing tools and information to address their civil legal needs. The nonprofit legal aid advice and referral center, available by phone to low-income people throughout Connecticut, helps clients solve their legal problems for free.

Ms. Naughton, co-chair of Robinson+Cole's Immigration Group, practices primarily in the area of U.S. immigration law, focusing on business immigration. The majority of her work involves advising businesses, schools, and nonprofits on nonimmigrant and immigrant visas for their employees and preparing visa petitions for submission to the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services. She also counsels employers on the Immigration Reform and Control Act and related issues, including I-9 and worksite enforcement issues. Additionally, she serves as outside immigration counsel for the Center for Children's Advocacy at the University of Connecticut School of Law.

About Connecticut's Statewide Legal Services

Statewide Legal Services, part of the Connecticut Network for Legal Aid, consists of several nonprofit legal services organizations whose shared mission is to improve the lives of Connecticut's poorest citizens by providing free legal services to low-income individuals. SLS is generally the entry point for accessing legal assistance. SLS believes that everyone should have access to justice and provides advice over the phone, mails information, or refers clients to a legal services office or private attorney at no cost to the client.
