Providence Business News Selects Firm as #1 Best Place to Work in Rhode Island in the Small Employer Category for 2015

PROVIDENCE, RI (June 17, 2015) – The Providence Business News has selected Robinson+Cole as the #1 Best Place to Work in Rhode Island in the small employer category for the second consecutive year. The winners were announced at a celebratory dinner on June 10, 2015, and featured in the June 15 edition of the Providence Business News.

“We are thrilled to have received this honor for the second year in a row,” said Patricia J. Igoe, a partner in the Providence office. “Our team in Providence is a committed group of individuals who work together to deliver exceptional service to our clients while also fostering a congenial environment that makes going to work every day a pleasure.”

“Best Places to Work” is a statewide survey and awards program that honors the best places for employment in Rhode Island. The winners are chosen through a two-part process. The first portion considers the workplace policies, practices, and demographics of each nominated company. The second portion involves an employee survey to measure the employee experience. The combined scores determine the top companies and the final ranking.
